The idea of making teachers who would be community workers was the vision behind setting up this co-ed. residential complex. The common dining facilities are part of the culture of an institutional fraternity who would run a co-operative mess in a spirit of camaraderie and community living. Dormitories in the living quarters were also part of learning to live together with a consciousness of the need of the 'other'.

The Hostels of the Central Institute of Education, Shakti Bhawan for men, and Shree Bhawan for women, are directly under the control of the Managing Committee constituted by the Vice-Chancellor, University of Delhi. Central Institute of Education (CIE), now known also as the Faculty and the Department of Education of the University of Delhi, was perhaps the first major institution of professional learning and research in Education that was established since independence. The first Prime Minister of India, Pandit Jawahar Lal Nehru and his first Education Minister, Maulana Abul Kalam Azad took considerable interest in CIE's establishment in 1947 and its activities and progress in those early years. Maulana Abul Kalam Azad visualized the function of CIE not merely to "turn out teachers who will be model teachers'. The Maulana prophesised that CIE would grow into "a beacon light for the training institutions of the country'. Over these past decades, CIE has indeed grown into a pace-setting institution in Teachers Education and Educational Research. Recognized as the Institute of Advanced Studies in Education (IASE) and having launched the Maulana Azad Centre for Elementary and Social Education (MACESE). CIE has shaped a unique philosophy which find reflection in its academic programmes.

"Teachers should function professionally as intellectuals and teacher education be inextricably linked to critically transforming the school setting and by extension, the wider social setting".
